What	A Scavenger Hunt can be easy to execute, and you can tailor them to the group participating and the cruise ship you're on.
How	You arrange to meet in one of the bars to start the game. Explain that the team with the most finds wins the prize.
Planning	two main types of scavenger hunts: photo and object. Alternatively, you can do a combination of both, depending on the situation. Object scavenger hunts are usually more difficult, so you need to allow a longer time for completion No matter what type of scavenger hunt you choose or how you set it up and carry it out, this is a fun way for families to bond. For groups of friends traveling together, it can be a great source of friendly competition. Personalize it for the cruise ship you're on and the cruise destinations you're visiting, and you have the makings for the ultimate cruise scavenger hunt! a week long scavenger hunt with getting signatures from people from different countries, senior officers, and cruise activity staff. It was a lot of fun trying to find all the staff. It was a great way to engage with more of the staff than I normally would.

From John Heald

We have an organized scavenger hunt on board but I think anything that you can find on the ship can be added to the list including signatures of crewmembers from specific countries, that's always a fun thing to do. Let me know if I can help further and of course I will provide a couple of prizes as well, cheers
